A short + happy
guide to mediation

Our easy to follow 5 stage process

So you've decided to separate?

Now the path ahead is you & your ex dealing with the division of assets, property, co-parenting, custody, maintenance and more. It is often overwhelming when emotions are already high, to say it is difficult time is often an understatement.

Family Mediation (also known as Divorce Mediation, Family Dispute Resolution) assists separated & divorced couples through this time. It is a practical and low cost way for separating families to sort this out with professional help – without having to go to court.

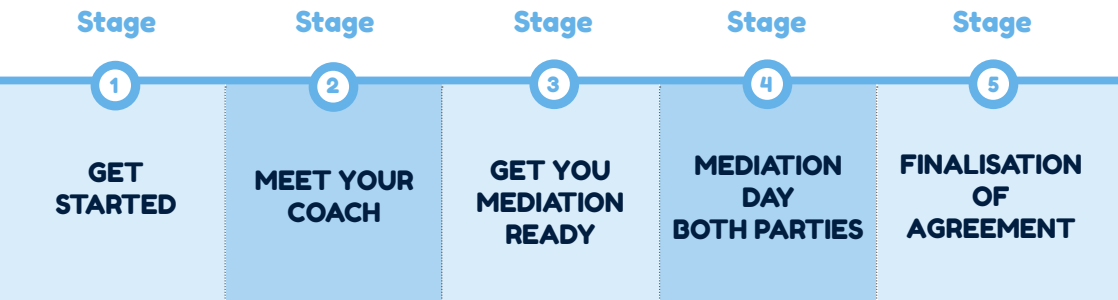

This guide is an overview to assist you to better understand how we have simplified the process of mediation – how it works & if it is for you. Our website has further resources & our team is always happy to answer any questions you may have.

We wish you a quick & happy mediation so you can move on with your life.

MEET YOUR COACH

Meet with our Mediation Coach, separately and confidentially, to get ready for your Mediation day. This is when you can discuss any concerns that you may have and what the outcomes you are looking for.

At this point we connect you to everything you need from legal advice to mortgage brokers, financial planners and valuers.

This is a 1 hour session via phone or Internet, in the comforts of your own home.

Working through a checklist covering all areas of parenting and/or property assists your Mediator to understand areas you are happy to negotiate and those you are not. This helps on the day ensuring that time is allocated to these areas accordingly.

It is crucial that you are fully prepared so that the proceeding steps are successful.

MEDIATION DAY BOTH PARTIES

When you are both ready we organise the Mediation day for you. This is a 2 hour session via Internet methods, phone or in person.

The Mediator is a neutral party whereby they facilitate the negotiations between you and your ex-partner to reach an agreement.

FINALISATION OF AGREEMENT

Your Agreement is now sent to our team.

We aim to resolve your property and/or parenting dispute and draft documents to formalise your agreement on the very same day.

Congratulations!

You are now free to move on with your life!
